Freight

RERLIN. Feb. L.

Rati Korrelbans, a farmhand employed at Koenigsbers, has had a reexhibition lottery, which is probably the markable experience while traveling as last lottery authorized by last lott perisable goods on the Prussian state railways, in consequence of which he is now under arrest.

Kerrelimine desired to rejoin his old employes, a briest living in the village of Garmilech, in invaria. Being without money, he conceived the idea of having himself nailed up in a packing case, and shipped by goods train.

He carcully prepared one, ventilated it, and toke up his residence therein, with enough samsage, beer and bread to last for the two days locatory.

All went well during the first day and night of the journey, but on the morning of the account day the parking case had to be removed to another train at a junction, and was temporarily deposited on a station platform.

The stationmenter's dog scented the contents and harked furiously. The puzzled station employees finally broke open the packing case, found Korrelhaus, who handed him over to the politic.
